

A new home for iGM in Shanghai, and a flagship office for our APAC business

Last week marked an exciting milestone for iGM Resins as we officially opened the doors to our new Shanghai office.

Our new address: 12A-01, Chengtou Holdings Tower, No. 130 Wusong Road, Hongkou District, Shanghai 200080, P. R. China

Shanghai is an important hub for iGM in Asia, and our new office reflects both the strength of our business in the region and our ambitions for the future. As our flagship office for our Asia Pacific Region, it provides a modern and collaborative home for our team and a place where we can proudly welcome customers, partners and other stakeholders from across the region.

And while we have moved, we haven't gone far. We are pleased to remain in the same Shanghai neighborhood that has been home to our team, while moving into a larger and enhanced space that gives us more room to connect, collaborate and grow.

More than simply a new workspace, the office is designed to bring people together. It creates an environment for collaboration, exchange and new ideas, strengthening the connections that will help us serve our customers, develop our business and create new opportunities for future growth across China and the wider APAC region.

We were especially honored to welcome Jan-Jaap Gerards, Deputy Consul General, and Lydia Jiang, Senior Commercial Officer Economic and Commercial Affairs, from the Consulate General of the Kingdom of the Netherlands in Shanghai, who joined us for the official opening and ribbon-cutting ceremony.

Their presence made this important milestone even more meaningful. As a company with Dutch roots and a strong presence in China, we greatly value our relationship with the Consulate General. Strong relationships like these help connect businesses, communities and markets. The Consulate's role in fostering connections between iGM, the Dutch business community and the broader business network in China is highly valued as we continue to build partnerships, explore opportunities and strengthen our presence in this important region.

Our new Shanghai home represents much more than a change of address. It reflects our confidence in the opportunities ahead and our focus on building a strong future for iGM in APAC, together with our employees, customers and partners.

We are excited about this next chapter and look forward to welcoming you to our new home in Shanghai.

A new office. Our APAC flagship. A place to connect, grow and shape the future together.
